CASE RESULTS

$300,000 Policy Limits Collected After Deadly Fire

Our client was renting a home when he died in a house fire. He was in the process of purchasing the home. According to the fire chief, it was an electrical fire caused by faulty wiring in the back of the stove or the stove itself. Attorney Todd Korb argued the owner of the property did not have proper smoke detectors installed in the home. Attorney Korb persuaded the owner's insurance company to offer their policy limits of $300,000.

Holiday Weekend Crash Results in $600,000 for Clients

Our clients were driving to Door County for a holiday weekend when an at-fault driver disregarded a stop sign and pulled onto the highway in front of their vehicle. One of our clients suffered serious injuries requiring hospitalization and surgery. Luckily, her husband suffered only minor injuries and was able to care for her during her recovery. Attorney Robert Domol recovered $500,000 from the at-fault driver's insurance company. Then, a lawsuit was filed, and an additional $100,000 settlement was obtained from our clients' insurance company at mediation.

$525,000 After Collision with Farm Vehicle

While driving home from work shortly after dusk, our client approached a tractor pulling a manure spreader with no lights. When the manure spreader was finally visible, our client pressed on his brakes, but it was too late. He rear-ended the manure spreader, causing the spreader to become dislodged from the tractor. As a result of the collision, our client sustained a significant leg injury requiring surgery. The tractor owner was cited for not having proper reflective material for night operation. Manure covered the reflective slow-moving vehicle sign. The insurance company for the tractor owner denied the claim, arguing that the driver should have seen the manure spreader and slowed down in time to avoid the collision.

Our client spoke with Attorney Brandon Derry to determine if it was possible to challenge the insurance company's decision. Attorney Derry recommended our client file a lawsuit because the collision could have been avoided if the tractor owner made sure the reflective slow-moving sign was visible at night to approaching vehicles. Following depositions, Attorney Derry settled the case successfully for $525,000.
