Granuflo and Naturalyte: What You Need to Know About it

Every week, thousands of people across the United States are hooked up to a kidney dialysis machine so that they can survive. Kidney dialysis is a medical procedure for persons with kidney problems, and it performs many of the same duties that a person's healthy kidneys perform. Primarily, kidney dialysis cleanses and purifies a person's blood from any impurities.

Since 2003, two drugs commonly used during dialysis procedures were Granuflo and Naturalyte. But in 2010, 941 patients suffered cardiac arrest while using dialysis with these drugs.

Granuflo and Naturalyte

A German-based pharmaceutical company, Fresenius, manufactured Granuflo and Naturalyte. Granuflo is an acid compound powder and Naturalyte is a liquid containing acetic acid.

Ingredients in Granuflo and Naturalyte include acetate and sodium bicarbonate. They are designed to produce bicarbonate during dialysis. However, these two ingredients may produce too much bicarbonate for the patient.

Some effects from too much bicarbonate that dialysis patients suffered—who received Granuflo and Naturalyte during their treatments—were included:

- Low blood pressure
- Irregular heartbeat
- Cardiac arrest
- Stroke
- Sudden death

FDA Warnings About Granuflo and Naturalyte

In March 2012, the FDA issued a Class 1 Warning recalling Granuflo and Naturalyte. A Class 1 Warning is a very serious type of recall because it involves the deaths of patients.

The warning came nine years after the drugs were approved by the FDA. But, in those nine years, 941 patients suffered cardiac arrest while receiving dialysis treatments.

Fresenius, the manufacturer of Granuflo and Naturalyte, were aware of the high carbonate issues with the drugs. The manufacturer sent memos to doctors in 2011 alerting them about using Granuflo and Naturalyte and the high carbonate issues—but did nothing to remove the products from the market until the FDA intervened with the recall warning a year later.

Do You Need an Attorney?

If someone you know or knew needed kidney dialysis, and they suffered cardiac arrest, a stroke or died, it is important to know if the drugs Granuflo and Naturalyte were used. If those two drugs were used, they should consider contacting an attorney.

At Hupy and Abraham, S.C., we pride ourselves on being honest and straightforward with our clients and potential clients. It doesn't benefit anyone to pursue litigation when a case isn't strong enough.

When manufacturers put an inferior product on the market, they should be held responsible for it. If that product was not tested adequately, they should also be held responsible. It's also very important to secure evidence that the manufacturers knew about the product's serious risks, but did not share the information with the public or warn consumers.

The single best way to know if you need an attorney is to speak with one. Share the details of your case, bring any evidence you have, and simply tell your story. A lawyer from Hupy and Abraham, S.C. will respond to your sensitive story with the concern and compassion that you are entitled to receive. Our attorneys will examine your possible case, answer your questions, and let you know about your legal options.

Getting Compensation for Granuflo and Naturalyte

Why should you file a lawsuit after the drugs Granuflo and Naturalyte were used? A serious diagnosis and medical issue can result in enormous losses—both financial and otherwise. If someone else—such as a manufacturer—is responsible for your health condition, they are also responsible for the costs your health condition incurs.

Specifically, you may be entitled to the following types of damages if you, or a member of your family, have been harmed by Granuflo or Naturalyte:

- Economic damages – These damages include the actual money lost by defective products. Economic damages include medical costs, lost wages, lost future income, and lost earning power.
- Non-economic damages – A serious medical condition caused by a defective product can greatly affect your life, your abilities, and your happiness. A liable manufacturer may owe you compensation for any pain and suffering, mental anguish, permanent disabilities, loss of companionship, loss of consortium, or lowered quality of life.
- Punitive damages – If a company has been grossly negligent or if it is determined that the company has committed an egregious wrong, they may be asked to pay their victims more money as a punishment and as a deterrent. The amount received for punitive damages varies widely.

In short, damages are meant to accomplish two major goals: compensate the victims and their families for what they have lost, and to prevent similar incidents from happening in the future. By filing a lawsuit, you are not only making sure that you receive what you are lawfully owed, you are also making sure that others don't suffer in the way that you have.

What Should You Do If You Have Been Harmed by Granuflo and Naturalyte?

When you suffer an injury in a traffic accident that is someone else's fault, the steps you take to get better and pursue compensation are relatively straightforward. If you believe that you have been harmed by a potentially defective product, the path to justice can be less clear.

While all harmful products are different, there are a few things that everyone should do if they believe they are the victim of a harmful product:

- Get the medical assistance that you need – Nothing is more important than your health. If you believe a product is causing your health problems, illnesses, or adverse events, you should report your symptoms to a medical professional immediately and voice your concern that your health condition may be tied to that product. Not only will getting medical assistance considerably improve your chances of recovery and remission, it will also document your health issues in the event that you would like to file a lawsuit.
- Don't hesitate to get a second opinion – We can't state this enough: your health is the most precious thing that you have. If your doctor isn't convinced that the product is affecting your health, or if your doctor isn't taking your health concerns seriously, seek a second opinion.

- Be compliant – It is difficult to get compensation for illnesses and medical costs if you don't follow treatment plans and doctors' orders. It's also difficult to get well if you aren't listening to your treating medical professionals.
- Keep notes and records – Take notes when you visit the doctor. Get copies of your medical records. Keep a diary of symptoms, illnesses and health observations. Keep track of medical expenses and other monetary losses related to your harmful product. All of the information you collect could be important to your possible lawsuit.
- Talk to an attorney—or two—about your case – Far too many harmful product victims second-guess themselves or delay telling their stories. They do not realize that many medical attorneys offer free, private consultations, or that a knowledgeable lawyer can analyze the evidence in their case and explain their legal options.

Hiring an Attorney? Ten Questions to Ask During Your Consultation

Even if you have decided that you want to learn more about your possible case, it can be difficult to know who to turn to, who to trust, and who will be your optimal partner and advocate. It is important to understand that not all attorneys have specific experience with regard to products like Granuflo and Naturalyte. In addition, it is important to understand that different attorneys offer different experiences—at different costs. Below, we've listed 10 questions that you should ask potential lawyers before agreeing to work with them on your case:

1. Do you have experience handling defective product cases—especially products like Granuflo and Naturalyte?
2. How do you conduct medical research related to cases like mine?
3. Do you utilize medical experts? If so, what are their credentials?
4. What do you believe are the most important aspects of a defective product lawsuit?
5. Can you share past defective product case results with me?
6. What are the strengths and weaknesses of my case?
7. What are my legal rights and what are my options for action?

8. Who in your office will handle my case? How will I contact you during my case?
9. What are your feelings on settling as opposed to going to court?
10. How do you bill your clients? What can I expect to pay if I win? What can I expect to pay if I lose?

Don't forget—it's not just experience and expertise that matter. In some cases, a lawyer's personality simply won't complement yours or you may simply not work well with certain attorneys. If you don't feel comfortable with the attorney you are speaking with, or if you don't feel confident about partnering with him or her, consider talking to someone else before making your decision.
