

ORAL SODIUM PHOSPHATE: WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT THEM

To prepare for medical procedures such as a colonoscopy, doctors would advise their patients to use an oral sodium phosphate product to clear out their systems. The patient could get the product over the counter or by a doctor's prescription.

More than twice the normal dosage of such products was recommended or prescribed prior to medical procedures such as a colonoscopy.

Oral Sodium Phosphate

Products containing oral sodium phosphate cause patients to lose fluids during bowel movements. Some of these products have been labeled as laxative products.

Too much oral sodium phosphate can cause severe kidney damage in the form of acute phosphate nephropathy. This condition is caused by a buildup of calcium phosphate crystals in the renal tubes. Acute phosphate nephropathy could lead to kidney dialysis and kidney transplant or even cause renal failure and death.

FDA Warnings About Oral Sodium Phosphate

In December 2008, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) warned that the use of oral sodium phosphate products is associated with acute phosphate nephropathy. Manufacturers were instructed to place noticeable warning labels on their products that were sold over the counter.

At the time the warning was issued, the FDA confirmed that more than 21 persons had developed acute phosphate nephropathy.

It's interesting to note that the double dosages that some of the doctors were recommending and the manufacturing companies promoting were never approved by the FDA.

Do You Need an Attorney?

If you or someone you know used a product with oral sodium phosphate and he suffered adverse medical effects, he should consider contacting an attorney.

At Hupy and Abraham, S.C., P.C., we pride ourselves on being honest and straightforward with our clients and potential clients. It doesn't benefit anyone to pursue litigation when a case isn't strong.

When manufacturers put an inferior product on the market, they should be held responsible for it. And, if that product was not tested adequately, they should also be held responsible. It's also very important to secure evidence that the manufacturers knew about the product's serious risks but did not share the information with the public or warn consumers.

The single best way to know if you need an attorney is to speak with one. Share the details of your case, bring any evidence you have, and simply tell your story. A lawyer from Hupy and Abraham, S.C., P.C. will respond to the sensitive story with the concern and compassion that you are entitled to receive. Our attorneys will examine your possible case, answer your questions, and let you know your legal options.

Getting Compensation for Using Oral Sodium Phosphate Products

Why should you file a lawsuit after using oral sodium phosphate products? A serious diagnosis and medical complications can result in enormous losses, both financial and otherwise. If a drug manufacturer is responsible for your health condition, it is also responsible for the costs your health condition incurs.

Specifically, you may be entitled to the following types of damages if you or a member of your family, have been harmed by oral sodium phosphate products:

- Economic damages. These damages include the actual money lost due to defective products. Economic damages include medical costs, lost wages, lost future income, and lost earning power.
- Non-economic damages. A serious medical condition caused by a defective product can greatly affect your life, your abilities, and your happiness. A liable manufacturer may owe you compensation for any pain and suffering, mental anguish, permanent disabilities, loss of companionship, loss of consortium, or lowered quality of life.
- Punitive damages. If a company has been grossly negligent or if it is determined that the company has committed an egregious wrong, they may be asked to pay its victims more money as a punishment and as a deterrent. The amount received for punitive damages varies widely.

In short, damages are meant to accomplish two major goals: compensate the victims and their families for what they have lost, and to prevent similar incidents from happening in the future. By filing a lawsuit, you are not only making sure that you receive what you are lawfully owed, you are also making sure that others don't suffer in the way that you have.

What Should You Do If You Have Been Harmed By Oral Sodium Phosphate Products?

When you suffer an injury in a traffic accident that is someone else's fault, the steps you take to get better and pursue compensation are relatively straightforward. If you believe that you have been harmed by a potentially defective product, the path to justice can be much less clear.

While all harmful products are different, there are a few things that everyone should do if they believe they are the victim of a harmful product:

- Get the medical assistance that you need. Nothing is more important than your health. If you believe a product is causing your health problems, illnesses, or adverse events, you should report your symptoms to a medical professional immediately and voice your concern that your health condition may be tied to that product. Not only will getting medical assistance considerably improve your chances of recovery and remission, it will also document your health issues in the event that you would like to file a lawsuit.
- Don't hesitate to get a second opinion. We can't state this enough: your health is the most precious thing that you have. If your doctor isn't convinced that the product is affecting your health, or if your doctor isn't taking your health concerns seriously, seek a second opinion.
- Be compliant. It is difficult to get compensation for illnesses and medical costs if you don't follow treatment plans and doctors' orders. It's also difficult to get well if you aren't listening to your treating medical professionals.
- Keep notes and records. Take notes when you visit the doctor. Get copies of your medical records. Keep a diary of symptoms, illnesses, and health observations. Keep track of medical expenses and other monetary losses related to your harmful product. All of the information you collect could be important to your possible lawsuit.
- Talk to an attorney—or two—about your case. Far too many harmful product victims second-guess themselves or delay telling their stories. They do not realize that many medical attorneys offer free, private consultations, or that a knowledgeable lawyer can analyze the evidence in their case and explain their legal options.

Hiring An Attorney? Ten Questions to Ask During Your Consultation

Even if you have decided that you want to learn more about your possible case, it can be difficult to know whom to turn to, whom to trust, and who will be your optimal partner and advocate. It is important to understand that not all attorneys have specific experience with regard to medical products such as oral sodium phosphate products. In addition, it is important to understand that different attorneys offer different experiences—and at different costs. Below, we've listed ten questions that you should ask potential lawyers before agreeing to work with them on your case.

1. Do you have experience handling defective product cases, especially oral sodium phosphate products?
2. How do you conduct medical research related to cases like mine?
3. Do you utilize medical experts? If so, what are their credentials?
4. What do you believe are the most important aspects of a defective product lawsuit?
5. Can you share past defective product case results with me?
6. What are the strengths and weaknesses of my case?
7. What are my legal rights and what are my options for action?
8. Who in your office will handle my case? How will I contact you during my case?
9. What are your feelings on settling as opposed to going to court?
10. How do you bill your clients? What can I expect to pay if I win? What can I expect to pay if I lose?

Don't forget: it's not just experience and expertise that matter. In some cases, a lawyer's personality simply won't complement yours, or you may simply not work well with certain attorneys. If you don't feel comfortable with the attorney you are speaking with, or if you don't feel confident about partnering with him or her, consider talking to someone else before making your decision.
